

End of the 2009/2010 School Year

This year was a good school year for me. It was fun and productive. With this being my last year in school, I needed to work very diligently to prepare myself for the next level of my life. I don't plan on going to college, but I am still going to need to get a high school diploma in order to get a good job.

This year, I thought about quitting I don't know how many times. But I realized I could get through it. Still, this school year was a lot rougher than last year. It was mostly because of some personal problems, not academic. I started the year on the honor role, but closer to the end of the school year, my grades started dropping. I finished with mostly low 80's. But the important thing is that I finished.

Even though I struggled a little more this year than last, it was still a pretty good year. I am thankful for everyone who helped out at the school and who helped me. I want to give a special thank you to Tom. He helped me even when I wouldn't help myself. In two years, Tom has taught me more than I have ever learned in all my other years of school. I thank Tom and the whole Community School for helping me and never giving up on me.
